AMERICAN ACADEMY OF PEDIATRICS

Formula manufacturers “donate $1 million annually to the American Academy of Pediatrics in the form of a renewable grant that has already netted the AAP $8 million. The formula industry also contributed at least $3 million toward the building costs of the AAP headquarters.”

(Building a World that Understands Neurology, American Academy of Neurology 2001 Annual Report; On file at CSPI)

According to a New York Times article, the Ross Products Unit of Abbott Laboratories, the maker of Similac infant formula, purchased 300,000 copies of the AAP’s “New Mother’s Guide to Breastfeeding” with Ross’ logo and name on them. In addition, “Ross, McNeil and Johnson & Johnson were the top three corporate supporters of the academy’s $65 million operating budget...each giving $500,000 or more.” (New York Times, 9/18/02, C1)

AMERICAN ACADEMY OF PEDIATRIC DENTISTRY

According to its website, “the AAPD Foundation welcomes the support of corporations who share [the] mission to improve the oral health of children.”

In March of 2003, the AAPD announced plans to receive an “unrestricted grant to support important clinical, basic and behavioral research” from the Coca-Cola Foundation. The New York Times reported the grant to be roughly $1 million. (New York Times, 3/4/03, p. A16) According to the AAPD press release, “this affiliation will also create public and professional educational programs, based on science, that promote improved dental health for children.” (http://www.aapd.org/media/pressreleases.asp?NEWS_ID=212; accessed 5/22/03)

AAPD Foundation Corporate Sponsors

3M ESPE will sponsor the 2003 Continuing Education Course, “Restorative Dentistry.”

Dentsply will sponsor AAPD’s Table Clinics at the Annual Session for $15,000. Dentsply design, develops, manufactures and markets a broad range of product for the dental market.

MAM provided a $30,000 grant to support the Good Health Starts Here campaign. Good Health Start Here education messages also will be printed on MAM product materials. MAM is the designer and producer of age-specific baby products such as pacifiers, pacifier keepers, teethers, bottles and drinking cups.

OMNII Oral Pharmaceuticals sponsors AAPD’s annual OMNII Postdoctoral Fellowships. OMNII Oral Pharmaceuticals is a distributor of prescription medications in dental offices.

Oral-B Laboratories supported the Good Health Starts Here consumer survey and focus groups, for a total gift of over $103,000. Through the AAPD Foundation, Oral-B also donated 1 million oral care products, valued at $3 million, to Women, Infants and Children (WIC) program, which is operated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. WIC will deliver these products, including toothbrushes, toothpaste and floss, into the hands of needy children in Texas and Pennsylvania.

Phillips Oral Health supports AAPD’s Annual Session Welcome Reception for $25,000 and the Keynote Speaker.

Practicon, Inc., sponsors AAPD’s Pediatric Dentist of the Year Award with an annual grant of $5,000. Practicon provides products and services that help dentists maximize patient care, productivity and enjoyment in their practices.

Procter & Gamble is a major sponsor for Good Health Starts Here, the AAPD educational campaign. Procter & Gamble is a manufacturer and marketer of oral health care products including Crest Toothpaste and Toothbrushes, Scope, Fixodent and Gleem.

Space Maintainers Laboratory supports AAPD’s Board of Trustees Luncheons. Space Maintainers is the largest group of orthodontic/ pedodontic appliance laboratories in the world.

Treloar & Heisel sponsored the AAPD Foundation Member Reception at the Annual Session in Denver, Colo. Treloar & Heisel designs, provides and services quality insurance plans specifically for professional associations. (http://www.aapd.org/foundation/donations; accessed 2/24/03)

AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY

According to a story in the New York Times, “The American Cancer Society... has endorsed Florida orange juice....” (8/13/97). See also World Tonight News With Peter Jennings (8/13/97); The Osgood File, CBS News (8/13/97). An editorial in the New England Journal of Medicine stated: “And why should the American Cancer Society endorse only SmithKline Beecham’s antismoking products?” Jerome P. Kassirer & Marcia Angell (9/4/97, p. 700) See also, Los Angeles Time (8/13/97). The ACS, however, denies that its actions are endorsements. Rather, it characterizes such transactions as a license for the “nonexclusive use of its logo on Florida orange juice and SmithKline Beecham’s antismoking products.”

The ACS’s “Cancer Facts & Figures - 1998” acknowledges on the front and back cover “a generous grant” by Glaxo Wellcome drug company. According to Advertising Age, the ACS was involved in a deal with General Mills to include information on packages of Wheaties (1/17/00; p. 54).

Published a “Biotechnology Resource Kit,” which was funded by the Council for Biotechnology Information.” (ADA “Dear Member” letter; 2000) [See entry for Council for Biotechnology Information]

ADA and DuPont have an agreement that enables ADA to place nutrition information on the web site http://www.webmd.com/. Dupont is an investor in WebMD. (ADA Press Release, 10/16/00)

ADA and American Pharmaceutical Association (pharmacists) announced a joint consumer-education program on supplements; it is funded by Monsanto Life Sciences Company (press release, 11/8/99).

The ADA co-produced, with funding from the ConAgra Foundation, a packet of information on food safety titled “Home Food Safety: It’s in Your Hands.” (Funding disclosed on packet on file at CSPI, Nov. 1999)

The American Dietetic Association has announced that it will be seeking to endorse food products (Nov.-Dec. 1997 ADA Courier).

The American Dietetic Association has received funding from numerous companies and receives underwriting for “fact sheets” on topics related to the companies’ products. Major ($100,000+) donors include: Kellogg, Kraft Foods, Weight Watchers International, Campbell Soup, National Dairy Council, Nestlé USA, Ross Products Division of Abbott Labs., Sandoz, Coca-Cola, Florida Department of Citrus, General Mills, Monsanto, Nabisco, Procter & Gamble, Uncle Ben’s, Wyeth-Ayerst Labs. (Nov-Dec 1996 ADA Courier)

The following companies and organizations sponsored information sessions at the ADA’s 2002 Food and Nutrition Conference, held in Philadelphia, PA:

- Almond Board of California
- American Egg Board/Egg Nutrition Center
- Aramark
Regarding an AHF press kit prepared by the PR firm, Ruder and Finn, William Ruder writes to Philip Morris: “please note that we have handled it so that there is not one single mention of the problem of smoking and health.” (Letter from William Ruder to James C. Bowling, June 19, 1975; available at: http://www.pmdocs.com, Doc ID # 2015013901; accessed 6/17/03)

AHF’s board of directors has included R.H. Adamson from the National Soft Drink Association and executives of Pepsi-Cola and Procter & Gamble. (AHF stationery, 1999)

AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION

The AHA offers food manufacturers a food certification program, labeling with the Association’s “heart-check mark” foods that are low in fat, saturated fat, and cholesterol. To cover the costs of administering the program, the AHA charges companies on a per product basis $7,500 for 1-9 products, $6,750 for 10-24 products and $5,940 for 25-99 products in their first year. To renew in subsequent years, the prices are $4,500, $4,050, and $3,570 respectively. (Email from Wilma Davis to CSPI, written 5/22/03; on file at CSPI) CSPI estimates that in 2002, with over 630 products certified, the AHA received over $2 million from its food certification program. (http://216.110.59.27/productlist.aspx; accessed 5/22/03)

Merck is spending $400,000 to finance an AHA program teaching 40,000 doctors to treat cholesterol according to guidelines. (Wall Street Journal, 6/14/98)

American Heart Association was paid $450,000 by the Florida grapefruit growers for exclusive grapefruit use of the Association’s heart-healthy endorsement. (Phila. Inquirer, 5/7/97)

American Heart Association has received $1.1 million (and an annual renewal potential of about $300,000) from food manufacturers as license fees to use the “heart check mark.” (Philadelphia Inquirer, 5/7/97)

AHA charges $2,500 (plus a yearly renewal charge of $650) for a company to put the association’s heart-check symbol on a package. Florida Dept. of Citrus paid $450,000 for exclusive promotion and advertising contract from 1994 until early 1997. The National Cattlemen’s Beef Association paid $25,000 for its arrangement with the AHA to promote lean cuts of beef. For an agreement with ConAgra in 1992-93, the AHA received $2021630953; accessed 6/17/03)
$3,500,000 for a TV program on nutrition. For companies that want an exclusive agreement with the AHA like that of the Florida citrus growers, the cost is $55,000 a quarter or $200,000 a year. Without exclusivity the cost is $25,000 a quarter or $90,000 a year. (New York Times, 10/22/97)

National Livestock and Meat Board gave $189,000 to the AHA to sponsor the HeartRide cycling series. AHA says the program will help ensure that people don’t think that AHA recommends abstaining from meat. (IEG Sponsorship Report, on file at CSPI)

American Heart Association has endorsed only Bayer aspirin. (New England Journal of Medicine, 9/4/97, p. 700) According to Kramer Laboratories, Inc. (Miami), “Bayer, as we understand it, contributes over $500,000 a year to the American Heart Association.” (Letter to AHA, 9/23/96) Web site is sponsored by Pfizer, Campbell, ConAgra (Healthy Choice), and Hoechst (Tufts Nutrition Navigator web site).

AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

AMA planned a campaign to remind doctors of ethical guidelines limiting their acceptance of gifts from pharmaceutical companies. The campaign was to be sponsored by Eli Lilly Corporation. (USA Today, 4/27/01, “Drugmakers bankroll ethics guidelines on ‘freebies’")

In 1997, the American Medical Association agreed to endorse products made by the Sunbeam Corporation. The five-year agreement would have placed the AMA’s logo on a line of thermometers, blood pressure monitors, and other home healthcare products and generated millions of dollars in royalties for the medical group (New York Times, 8/13/97, p. A1). However, the AMA hadn’t evaluated the quality and cost of the products (New York Times, 5/17/97, p. D6). As a result of media publicity and concerned AMA members, the deal was scrapped and five of the group’s executive leadership left the AMA (New York Times, 9/20/97, p. D2; Chicago Sun Times, 11/1/97, p. A1). Subsequently, Sunbeam sued the AMA for breach of contract and won a $9.9 million settlement. (Medical Industry Today, 8/4/98)

The Chicago Sun-Times reported that in early 1996 Procter & Gamble/olestra, through its PR agency, gave the AMA a check for $800,000 in partial support of an AMA fitness program; the check, which was later returned, came after the AMA issued a statement endorsing the FDA’s approval of olestra. (AMA press release, Jan. 1996; Chicago Sun-Times, 11/26/97, p. 70)

AMERICAN MEDICAL WOMEN’S ASSOCIATION

AMWA cosponsored the National Association of Margarine Manufacturers website (see NAMM site; reported in AMWA website, December 18, 1997).

“AMWA’s Advanced Curriculum on Women’s Health Part I and Part II were sponsored by educational grants from The Upjohn Company, which were instrumental in developing the curriculum, and by contributions from Aetna Health Plans, Astra/Merck, Bristol-Meyers Squibb Company, Marion Merrell Dow, Mead Johnson Division, Tylon Corporation, and Zeneca Pharmaceuticals. Contributions are being solicited for the 1998 program.” (http://www.amwa.org/, December 18, 1997)

The Education Project on Coronary Heart Disease in Women is funded by an unrestricted educational grant from the National Association of Margarine Manufacturers. (http://www.amwa.org/, December 18, 1997)

According to Modern Healthcare, the AMWA Product Acceptance Program, which was active from 1985 to at least 1998, included NatureMade Vitamins. A nonexclusive arrangement cost $25,000 to review a product to see if it enhances women’s health, and can say “AMWA Accepted.” (Modern Healthcare, 2/2/98)

A September 15, 1997, AVMA statement said:

“Bayer Animal Health and Hill's Pet Nutrition Inc. have pledged major financial commitments to the AVMA over the next few years. AVMA president (1996-1997), Dr. Mary Beth Leininger, told attendees: ‘Tonight, two great companies Hill’s Pet Nutrition Inc. and Bayer Animal Health are joining with me in making the first public announcement of an unprecedented level of corporate support for our profession and our Association.... Each of the companies has generously pledged to provide the profession and AVMA with groundbreaking support over the next three to five years. This historic action on the part of Hill’s and Bayer will take the form of direct financial support of AVMA-sponsored programs and projects and the allocation of their corporate resources to greatly enhance these efforts. With tonight’s announcement, Hill’s and Bayer have gone beyond simple sponsorship. These two companies are showing through this historic and unique commitment an understanding and belief in the important interrelationship between our profession and the entire animal health care industry that we have not seen before.”

[Robert Wheeler, chairman and CEO of Hill’s:] “Today I take great pleasure in announcing that Hill’s will fund AVMA at a level of $1 million over three years. These funds will support the AVMA convention and a myriad of other meetings in disaster relief, animal welfare, educational symposia, and veterinary practice management.”

[John Payne of Bayer said:] “That’s why I am proud to announce a long-range, five-year financial commitment to the AVMA.”

“Dr. Leininger summed it up. ‘This is a landmark day for all of us, thanks to Bayer and Hill’s.” (http://www.avma.org/onlnews/javma/sep97/s091597d.htm, October 26, 2000)

ARTHRTIS FOUNDATION

“The mission of The Arthritis Foundation is to improve lives through leadership in prevention, control and care of arthritis and related diseases.” (http://www.arthritis.org; accessed 5/22/03)

Arthritis Foundation licensed its name to McNeil Consumer Products for aspirin, acetaminophen, and ibuprofen-containing products. A coalition of Minnesota and 18 other state attorneys general won a $2 million settlement from McNeil in 1996 for deceiving consumers with products labeled with the Arthritis Foundation name. (Press release from Minnesota attorney general, 10/16/96)

According to an Associated Press story, “the [Arthritis Foundation] had agreed to the use of its logo in the ads in exchange for $350,000 in contributions by Rexall [Sundown] to an arthritis education campaign. But the ads, which claim Osteo Bi-Flex helps repair and rebuild cartilage, began appearing in national magazines in May without review by the foundation.” (AP, 6/6/99)

BREAST CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

According to the Progressive magazine, this event “...happens to be sponsored by Imperial Chemical Industries (ICI), one of the world's largest manufacturers of organochlorines. ICI has approved — or vetoed — every poster, pamphlet, and advertisement used for Breast Cancer Awareness Month from the beginning. And BCAM literature has never mentioned the link [sic] link between breast cancer and organochlorines...” (Molly Ivins, Progressive, January, 1998, p. 46)

CENTER FOR INDOOR AIR RESEARCH

According to the minutes of a meeting of the Tobacco Institute’s Executive Committee, the Center for Indoor Air Research was initially formed and funded by Lorillard, Philip Morris and R.J. Reynolds to “sponsor and foster research in indoor air issues with emphasis on environmental tobacco smoke.” (http://www.tobaccofreedom.org/issues/documents/ets/cia_center/; accessed 5/15/02)

According to a U.S. Newswire article “the Center for Indoor Air Research (CIAR) - was created for the very purpose of spearheading...deceptive industry efforts and was shut down by the state attorneys general as part of the 1998 state tobacco settlement. In January 29, 2003, court filings to support its racketeering lawsuit against the tobacco industry, the U.S. Department of Justice stated, ‘CIAR was officially created ... to act as a coordinating organization for Defendants’ efforts to fraudulently mislead the American public about the health effects of ETS (environmental tobacco... smoke) exposure.’ The Justice Department also stated that CIAR ‘was not only used for litigation and public relations, but it was (sp) also funded research designed not to find answers to health questions, but solely to attack legislative initiatives related to ETS exposure. Lawyers specifically engineered and constructed scientific studies to get results that would be useful for public relations, litigation, and legislative battles, as opposed to results that would assist the scientific community in further understanding the health effects of ETS exposure.” (Statement by Matthew L. Myers, Campaign for Tobacco Free Kids, in the U.S. Newswire, 5/15/03, National Desk)

CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF CARBON DIOXIDE AND GLOBAL CHANGE

Founded in 1998 and based in Tempe, AZ, the Center is “dedicated to discovering and disseminating scientific information pertaining to the effects of atmospheric CO2 enrichment on climate and the biosphere.” ([http://www.co2science.org/center.htm; accessed 10/11/01](http://www.co2science.org/center.htm; accessed 10/11/01))

Received $10,000 from the ExxonMobil. ([http://www.exxonmobil.com/contributions/public_info.html; accessed 6/27/01](http://www.exxonmobil.com/contributions/public_info.html; accessed 6/27/01))

CHEMICAL INDUSTRY INSTITUTE OF TOXICOLOGY (CIIT) CENTERS FOR HEALTH RESEARCH

The CIIT Science Advisory Committee “plays a key role in ensuring the credibility of CIIT science.... The Committee also reviews the Institute’s performance in fulfilling the research objectives of the chemical industry.” Supported by the Chemical Manufacturers Association and by about three dozen major chemical companies. (1997 Annual Report)

“In 1999, the Board of Directors of the American Chemistry Council approved a Long-Range Research Initiative (LRI), which sponsors research on health and environmental effects of chemical use. In developing its research initiative, the American Chemistry Council formed an alliance with CIIT.... Through the LRI, support for CIIT is being enhanced and consolidated into sponsorship by the entire membership of nearly 200 companies of the American Chemistry Council.” (2000 Annual Report; accessed 9/26/02)

CHILDREN AND ADULTS WITH ATTENTION-DEFICIT/HYPERACTIVITY DISORDER/CHADD

About 20 percent of the organization’s budget in some years reportedly was underwritten by Ciba-Geigy (now Novartis), the maker of Ritalin.
CHADD was reported to have received from drug companies more than $1 million in grants and services. The Drug Enforcement Administration said, “The relationship between Ciba-Geigy and CHADD raises serious concerns about CHADD’s motive in proselytizing the use of Ritalin.” (DEA, “Methylphenidate (a background paper),” October 1995, p.4.)

CHADD received about $30,000 from Novartis and ten percent of its income overall from the drug industry. (Phone call, John Heavener, CHADD, to CSPI/M. Jacobson; May 27, 1999.)

“CHADD received $748,000 from Ciba/Novartis in the period 1991 to 1994 alone.” (Law suit No. CV 1839 E (CGA); U.S. District Court, Southern District of California; Vess et al vs. Ciba-Geigy et al., 9/13/00)

GREENING EARTH SOCIETY

The Greening Earth Society was created by the Western Fuels Association and holds that industrial evolution is good, and using fossil fuels to enable economic activity is as desirable. GES promotes the benign effects of carbon dioxide (CO2) on the earth’s biosphere and humankind. The Society provides information about CO2 and fossil fuels to educators, students, business and media representatives, community leaders and policymakers. Information is provided to the public through the biweekly World Climate Report, the annual State of the Climate Report, the video “The Greening of Planet Earth” and “The Greening of Planet Earth Continues” and its website. HABITAT FOR HUMANITY

Habitat for Humanity received materials, time, training and funds, from the Chlorine Chemistry Council (CCC), the Vinyl Siding Institute (VSI) and the Vinyl Institute. The groups work together to provide affordable, vinyl-sided housing for families as well as promote the benefits of vinyl construction products. (http://c3.org/about_ccc/partnerships2.html 6/6/01)

HEALTH EDUCATION FOUNDATION / HEALTH COMMUNICATIONS

Health Education Foundation was founded by Morris Chafetz, M.D., former head of the National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism. Health Communications is the for-profit relative.

“...a group supported both by the public and the liquor industry...” (New York Times, 5/25/86, Section 3, page 2)

According to the Los Angeles Times, “[M]ost of the seminars done by Health Communications are sponsored. Among the most active sponsors are Anheuser-Busch and Miller [Brewing Co.]... Others who have sponsored workshops include Heublein; Citicorp, through its Diners Club program, and a number of hotel chains (including Westin, Ramada Inn, Ritz-Carlton, Omni) and restaurant chains. “ (1/18/90, p. H18)

“Excellent commitment from our corporate sponsors and the food and beverage industry has allowed us to TIPS-train 200,000 people in six-and-a-half years,” said Marc Chafetz [attorney son of Morris], president of Health Communication, Inc. (PR Newswire, 6/28/90)

“... Health Education Foundation, which has received money from the alcoholic beverage industry.” (Washington Post, 11/20/97, A24)

“Your paper took it upon itself to point out the fact that Chafetz’s foundation has received money from the alcohol beverage industry, a fact that he does not dispute. The alcohol industry, however, is just one of many industries that support the Health Education Foundation.” (Letter, Adam F. Chafetz, Washington Post, 11/29/97, A21)

HEALTHY FOUNDATION

A “non-profit organization committed to ending malnutrition in America by providing at-risk populations with basic nutrients through supplementation.” Its major sponsors include Longevity Science, Natural Factors, Nutrition Formulators, Tishcon Corp. (http://www.healthfound.org/whoare sponsors.htm; accessed 6/10/02)

HEALTH EFFECTS INSTITUTE

Based in Boston, HEI is “a partnership of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and industry.” “The Institute...provides [information] on health effects of pollutants from motor vehicles and from other sources...including carbon monoxide, methanol and aldehydes, nitrogen oxides, diesel exhaust, ozone, and particulate air pollution.” “The Institute is supported jointly by the EPA and industry.” (http://www.healtheffects.org/about.htm; accessed 10/02/02)

INTERNATIONAL LIFE SCIENCES INSTITUTE

Founded “in 1978 to work toward a safer, healthier world. ILSI is a worldwide foundation that is making a difference in public health by advancing the understanding of scientific issues related to nutrition, food safety, toxicology, and the environment. ILSI is governed by an Assembly of Members, which includes one representative from each of its more than 400 member companies, and an elected Board of Trustees of renowned scientists from academia and industry, all of whom volunteer their time and expertise. ILSI members represent the world’s leading manufacturers...”
of food and food ingredients, chemicals, pharmaceuticals, and other consumer products.” (http://www.ilsi.org/about/; September 22, 2000) ILSI has branches in about a dozen other countries/regions.

ILSI has received funding from the alcoholic beverage industry. (Addiction. 2001;96:197-202)

ILSI’s fall, 1996, N.Y. Academy of Science conference on fat substitutes was funded in part by Procter & Gamble (Mother Jones, May/June, 1997, p.14).

ILSI funders have included: Ajinomoto USA, Anheuser-Busch, ARCO Chemical Co., Dannon, Domino Sugar Corp., Eastman Chemical Co., Kraft Foods, Monsanto, Nabisco, Procter & Gamble, Wm. Wrigley Jr. Co. (“Members of ILSI,” received 7/2/96).

NATIONAL ALLIANCE FOR THE MENTALLY ILL (NAMI)

“[A] November/December 1999 Mother Jones article, ‘An Influential Mental Health Nonprofit Finds Its “Grassroots” Watered by Pharmaceutical Millions,’ by Ken Silverstein. The article focused on the enormous amount of funding which NAMI receives from pharmaceutical companies, with Eli Lilly and Co. taking the lead by donating nearly $3 million to NAMI between 1996 and 1999. In fact, according to Silverstein, NAMI took in a little more than $11 million from 18 drug companies for that period.” (Kelly Patricia O'Meara, Insight magazine, 10/16/2000)

NATIONAL CONSUMERS LEAGUE

The NCL’s “mission is to identify, protect, represent, and advance the economic and social interests of consumers and workers. [The NCL is] the nation’s oldest consumer organization.” (http://www.nclnet.org; accessed 5/22/03)

“The biggest givers [to NCL for the years 2000 and 2001] included Bell Atlantic ($50,000), Bridgestone Firestone ($25,000), Bristol Myers Squibb ($125,000), Edison Electric Institute ($234,919), First USA ($100,000), GlaxoSmithKline ($26,800), Kaiser ($66,048), Microsoft ($50,000), Porter Novelli ($66,950), Titan Corp. ($72,460), Verizon ($204,667), VISA USA ($52,000), and Wyeth Ayerst ($337,500).”
(Corporate Crime Reporter 2002; 16(48):6)

NCL distributed public service announcements on overuse of antibiotics; underwritten by Merck-Medco. (NCL Bulletin, Jan/Feb 1998; http://nclnet.org/psas.htm; accessed 5/22/03)

According to the Multinational Monitor: “while refusing to give specific numbers detailing how much money each particular corporation or industry association has contributed, League officials say that 39 percent of the group’s 1997 budget of $1.3 million came from corporations and industry associations....

“For example, a May conference, ‘Focus on Youth: The New Consumer Power,’ in Lake Buena Vista, Florida, is sponsored in large part by a coalition of major corporations that traditionally have been hostile to consumer interests, including Visa USA, the Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association, the Chlorine Chemistry Council, Monsanto, General Motors, the public relations firm Burson-Marsteller and the National Meat Association.

“An April 1997 conference titled ‘Health Care: How Do Consumers Manage?’ was sponsored by major pharmaceutical and health care companies, including Bristol-Myers, Glaxo Wellcome, Pfizer, Wyeth–Ayerst Labs, the health maintenance organization Kaiser Permanente, Merck, PacifiCare Health Systems, SmithKline Beecham, and Pharmacia & Upjohn. Big labor unions are also listed as contributors to the conference....

“One of three top contributors to the [NCL’s 1997 annual] dinner was Liz Claiborne. The other two were Allstate Insurance and Wyeth-Ayerst. The next five top contributors were AT&T, Edison Electric Institute, Monsanto Company, Schering Plough and Visa USA.

“Earlier in April, the League co-sponsored with the Electric Consumers’ Alliance a conference titled ‘Restructuring of the Electric Industry: What is the Impact?’ The Alliance is a front group for the Edison Electric Institute....

“A ‘Consumer Guide to Choosing Your Telephone Service’ was paid for by Ameritech.

“A brochure titled ‘Making Sense of Your New Communications Choices’ was paid for by GTE.

“A pamphlet titled ‘Take Care with Over the Counter Asthma Medicine’ was paid for by Syntex, a pharmaceutical company.

“A newsletter, ‘Community Credit Link,’ was paid for by Visa USA.”

In April 2002, the society held a black-tie event in Washington, D.C., themed “Coming of Age,” a salute to the vibrancy of middle-aged women. According to a January 2003 Washington Monthly article, “The whole event had been underwritten by the pharmaceutical company Wyeth, which also happens to manufacture Prempro, the drug most widely used in hormone-replacement therapy (HRT) for post-menopausal women.... Some participants were taken aback. ‘Without mentioning Wyeth,’ says one, ‘It was like they were doing an ad for Wyeth.’ ... A week later, Wyeth presented the society with a $250,000 check at a special event celebrating the 60th anniversary of Premarin, the company’s other HRT drug.” (“Hot Flash, Cold Cash,” Washington Monthly Online, January/February 2003)

THE ADVANCEMENT OF SOUND SCIENCE COALITION [defunct]

O’Dywer’s PR Services reports that TASSC is “leading the charge against what it views as the unholy alliance between environmentalists and the media” (Feb. 1996).

The office of Stephen Milloy (executive director of TASSC) is in the headquarters of APCO Associates, a Washington, D.C., PR firm that specializes in creating coalitions like TASSC. (Village Voice, April 29, 1997, p. 39)

According to the Environmental Working Group (EWG) this “sound science” coalition is supported by hundreds of corporations, including 3M, Amoco, Chevron, Dow Chemical, Exxon, General Motors, Occidental Petroleum, Philip Morris, Procter & Gamble and W.R. Grace. Its objective is to act as a speakers bureau to deliver the corporate message that environmental public policy is not currently based on “sound science,” and to counter excessive regulations that are based on what it considers “junk” science.

TASSC, according to EWG, was created in 1993 to promote “sound science” in policy decision making. TASSC’s extensive advisory board contains well known “science skeptics” S. Fred Singer, Bruce Ames, Dr. Patrick Michaels, Michael Sanera, and Hugh Ellsaesser.

Steven Milloy, executive director of TASSC, is a self styled “junk science” critic who previously launched the Junk Science Page through the Environmental Policy Analysis Network (EPAN), a group he started in 1996. Milloy is also a lobbyist for the EOP Group, a DC-based lobbying firm that represents the American Crop Protection Association, the Chlorine Chemistry Council, Edison Electric Institute, among others. Under Milloy’s personal listing of groups he represents through the EOP Group in 1996 were Fort Howard Corp., the International Food Additives Association, and Monsanto. According to the most recent edition of Washington Representatives, Milloy’s client list has grown to include the National Mining Association, among others. TUFTS UNIVERSITY

SCHOOL OF NUTRITION SCIENCE AND POLICY

Tufts University School of Nutrition Science and Policy held a conference on fat-modified foods, December 7-9, 1997, that was underwritten by Procter & Gamble. P&G paid Tufts at least $50,000 in addition to the costs of the conference, according to Tufts' Jim Tillotson. (conversation with CSPI/M. Jacobson, Nov. 1999).

Tufts University School of Nutrition Science and Policy's website, Tufts University Nutrition Navigator, is underwritten by a grant from Kraft Foods, Inc. (Website, December 18, 1997) Several of the people who oversee the web site have been industry consultants.

“Tufts University and Women First HealthCare introduce first-of-its-kind dietary supplement line for women over 45.” (PR Newswire; June 16, 2000) Tufts School of Nutrition Science and Policy informed CSPI (June 2000; August 2000) that the royalties are split among four entities: the Faculty, the department, the School of Nutrition Science and Policy, and Tufts University. Their research was sponsored entirely by a grant from Women-First Health Care, which is the company Tufts collaborated with. While the department owns the license to the product, Women-First has right of first refusal.

TUFTS CENTER FOR THE STUDY OF DRUG DEVELOPMENT

An academic, non-profit research group affiliated with Tufts University, Medford, MA. Founded in 1976, the Center’s mission “is to provide strategic information for drug developers, regulators, and policy makers on improving the quality and efficiency of pharmaceutical development, research, and utilization.” (http://csdd.tufts.edu/; accessed 6/5/02)

According to its 2001 brochure, “the Tufts Center is funded principally by unrestricted contributions from pharmaceutical and biopharmaceutical companies, contract research organizations [and] trade associations.” (TUFTS Brochure, 2001, on file at CSPI; accessed 6/5/02) Those sponsors include Abbott Laboratories, Wyeth-Ayerst Research, Johnson & Johnson-Merck, Purdue Pharma, L.P. (http://csdd.tufts.edu/About/Sponsors Say.asp; accessed 7/10/02)

Following four paragraphs from Grocery Manufacturers of America (GMA) (http://www.gmabrands.com/, September 15, 2000) and Ceres e-mail, 11-6-98:

“The Center’s Director, Dr. Lester Crawford, ... serve[d] as Academic Advisor to GMA on scientific and regulatory issues dealing with food and nutrition policy.

“GMAs partnership with Georgetown University will provide us with a wealth of information and expertise on emerging issues impacting our member companies, from food biotechnology to new regulations on food safety and nutrition claims,” said GMA President and CEO C. Manly Molpus. “The Center will aid us in our mission to provide our members with the latest and more relevant analysis of food and nutrition policy.”

“The Center’s partnership with GMA is a natural fit because of our mutual desire to foster understanding of food and nutrition policy issues,” said Dr. Crawford. “We’re able to provide a forum where leaders from industry, regulatory agencies and consumer groups can effectively communicate.”
